In the United States, much of the film industry is centered around Hollywood, California. Other regional centers exist in many parts of the world, such as Mumbai-centered Bollywood, the Indian film industrys Hindi cinema which produces the largest number of films in the world.⁵ Though the expense involved in making films has led cinema production to concentrate under the auspices of movie studios, recent advances in affordable film making equipment have allowed independent film productions to flourish.

Production Main article: Filmmaking At its core, the means to produce a film depend on the content the filmmaker wishes to show, and the apparatus for displaying it: the zoetrope merely requires a series of images on a strip of paper. Film production can, therefore, take as little as one person with a camera or even without a camera, as in Stan Brakhage's 1963 film Mothlight, or thousands of actors, extras, and crew members for a live-action, feature-length epic. The necessary steps for almost any film can be boiled down to conception, planning, execution, revision, and distribution. The more involved the production, the more significant each of the steps becomes. In a typical production cycle of a Hollywood-style film, these main stages are defined as development, pre-production, production, post-production and distribution. This production cycle usually takes three years. The first year is taken up with development. The second year comprises preproduction and production. The third year, post-production and distribution. The bigger the production, the more resources it takes, and the more important financing becomes. Most feature films are artistic works from the creators' perspective e.g., film director, cinematographer, screenwriter and for-profit business entities for the production companies.

The International Indian Film Academy Awards, planned to take place on March 27, was canceled,⁷ while the Italian Academy's David di Donatello ceremony has been postponed from April 3 to May 8.³¹ The American Film Institute's lifetime achievement ceremony to honor Julie Andrews was pushed back from April to the summer.³² The 2020 Platino Awards were also postponed.³³
